Couples getting married know there are a lot of details (and stress) in planning a wedding.

It may not be high on the list of wedding planning activities, but along with the cake and gift registry, filing your first tax return (as a married couple) should be on your checklist.

When couples getting married consider how marriage may affect their taxes, including it as part of your wedding planning activities can help keep tax issues from interrupting your newly wedded bliss.

You might save some money or even prevent the problem of a missing refund check.

No one should delay the cake cutting or honeymoon because of taxes.

Here are five simple steps that can help make filing your first tax return (as newlyweds) less stressful:
