Introduction

Picture it...

No Monday-morning chaos in your house, because you don't have to get ready for work. No rush-hour traffic jams. No going to a job you loathe.

Instead, you wake up leisurely – at a time you choose – and start the coffee pot. The commute to your workplace is just down the hall to your computer. You log in, check your day's assignments and then start writing blog posts. Sometimes you pause to pinch yourself to check that this is real and not a dream!

If this sounds like your kind of workday, then you're reading the right report.

In just a few minutes you'll find out how you too can get hired for paid blogging jobs! You'll find out:

- Where to find plenty of paid blogging jobs – there's a lot of opportunity just waiting for you!
- How to analyze blogging opportunities. Be careful, you won't even earn minimum wage with some jobs!
- How to impress the hiring manager. The other applicants will look like green amateurs next to you!
- How to land the best jobs. Yes, this includes the highest-paying jobs!
- Plus simple ways to make even more money as a paid blogger.

So let's get to it...

Finding Prospective Blogging Jobs

Your first step is to uncover as many blogging jobs as possible. Be sure to bookmark all the following sites, because many of them update their job listings frequently. You'll want to check them frequently, since some jobs are only open for a short amount of time.

Here's how to find these jobs...

Visit Sites That List Paid Blogging Jobs

- The ProBlogger Jobs Board at <http://jobs.problogger.net/>. Check this daily, because a couple jobs seem to be added each day. This is one of the best places to find paid blogging jobs (often with well-known companies).
- Bloggng Pro Jobs Board at <http://bloggngpro.com/jobs/>. Very similar to ProBlogger's board, but with different jobs listed.
- About.com's Jobs Board at <http://forums.about.com/n/pfx/forum.aspx?folderId=13&listMode=13&nav=messagess&webtag=ab-weblogs>. These are all blogging jobs, generally updated weekly with a list of new jobs for that week.
- Writer's Weekly at http://www.writersweekly.com/markets_and_jobs.php. This site posts a wide variety of writing-related jobs. You can generally spot the blogging jobs since they'll make a reference to "web content" or, if you're lucky, they'll tell you specifically that they're looking for bloggers right in the post title.
- Freelance Writing Gigs at <http://www.freelancewritinggigs.com/>. This isn't blogging-specific, but you will find blogging jobs posted.

Use Craigslist.org

Many employers post their blogging jobs under the "Jobs" section (check the "Writing/Editing" category) or under the "Gigs" section (check the "Writing" and "Creative" categories) of Craigslist.org. You can also use the search box to search specifically for blogging jobs.

Keep in mind that you don't need to limit yourself to just looking at your own region on Craigslist.org. You can find a wider variety of jobs but checking out the ads in the larger cities, like Los Angeles, New York, Chicago, London and so on.
