Choosing a Future Antique Item

---

I wonder what made items in the past become a future antique. Is it that they lasted long enough to become an antique or is there something special about all antiques that help them to acquire that status? I also sometimes am left wondering what, in this current time, will become an antique in the near or distant future. Here I'm going to explore what might make an item collectable and some things that you could save for an antique of the future.

So, why is something commonly bought collectable?

- Fastest thing I think of is - they are a limited edition or limited in the amount created.
- They are produced in quantity but only for a short period of time.
- They are a throw away item like a newspaper or a pen.
- They occur as a result of a major event.
- They might be a totally new breakthrough in technology at the time.
- They declare a time, as in, the spirit of something.
- Something that was once mass produced but has a very remarkable design.
